KILLED BY A TIGER.	l,
- The following facts velating to the 990 doubt	١.
of young Mr. Raitt, who died the other day from injuries inflicted by a tiger, will be found	É interesting, Mr. Raitt, who was an outhusi- astic and most gallant sportsman, had obtained	ŀ, a couple of months' leave, and was shooting big game in the Asseergnrh jungles. He had	١.

animals, when on the night of the 9th-10th instant, a large tigge onme within a hundred Banoneria, level of the ven in inches, tong, and hundred vards of his tent, and carried away the caronso | Intersounter, in Patrenheit degrees and tens, kept in the open | EVERY CLASS of GOODS in LADIES of a bear he had shot the day before. Mr. Ruitt was at this time abooting on the banks of the Taptee, about twelve miles distant from the Chandnes railway station. On the morning of the 10th he tracked up the tiger, who had been so near his tent, for a considerable distance, but F. Vog. G. Foggy. H. Hail L. Lightning, M. Misty. O. eventually lost him, or rather her, for the animal subsequently proved to be a tigress. At T. Thunder. U. Bad, threatening. V. Vintility. W. Storm, about 4.30 p.m., when Mr. Ruitt, who had Z. Culm. The letters are repeated to indicate any increase over been walking all day, and had land fair aport, the meas average of their signification, was feeling tired and had given his rifle to a beater to carry, the tigress suddenly came in registered from 1 to 24, and the quantity of water fallen indicated in sight, but disappeared again before he could get a sight at her. The beaters then put Mr. Raitt on the bank of a nullah, and said they LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE would beat the animal up towards him, which they accordingly did. She appeared in sight, and Mr. Raitt, who was a splendid shot, fired and wounded her, but not severaly. He fired again with the same effect. A third time he fired with apparently fatal effect this time, for upon insurances effected with this Company. the tigress rolled ever on her back, clawing the air convulsively with her legs. On this Mr. Raitt went up within fifty or sixty yards of her and fired again to make sure of her. The bullet atruck her, and she got up at once, and in a few bounds was on poor Raitt, knocking him down and seizing him by the left knee, which she bit severely, and loosing her bold made a grab at his bead, which he saved with his arm. He must have been killed on the spot, had not one of his beaters, a Gond, rushed up to him in the most placky way, and at the imminent risk of his own life, put an end to the tigress by Chandnee railway station, which he reached at between four and five next morning. The station master at once sent to Assecraurh for a surgeon, but he did not come, sending a message instead to the effect that the wounded man should either be sent on to Khundwa or else sent to Asseerourb. The former was thought the more advisable course, and a gentleman who came to the Chandree station kindly took charge of poor Raitt, and telegraphed to Khundwa to Dr. Oullen, the Civil Surgson, to meet him at the railway station. Dr. Oullen did so, washed and dressed his wounds and looked after him with the utmost care and attention, as did also another gentleman of Khundwa, to whose house be was removed, and who spared no pains nor trouble to look after the sufferer. Mr. Raitt thought his injuries were not serious, and was exceedingly placky and hopeful about himself
